HRS Network PRO Course Overview

Welcome to HRS Academy Network Pro course. This course prepares you for IT support jobs and related IT certifications. You will gain the knowledge and skills you need to install, configure, and maintain a network for a small business.

To be successful in this course, you need certain prerequisite skills. We recommend that you complete the TestOut PC Pro or CompTIA A+ certification and have 9 months of networking experience before beginning this course. If you haven't completed these things, you can still take this course. Just be prepared to have a slightly steeper learning curve than students who have more knowledge and experience to draw from.

One of the key things is experience with computer hardware. As we go through this course, we assume that you already know a lot of things. For example, if I were to say in this course we're going to install a network card in an expansion bus, we assume that you know what we are talking about and how to do that. You know how to select the appropriate network board for the appropriate expansion bus slot and how to configure resources and drivers for that expansion board.

Now let's spend a few minutes talking about what you're going to learn in this course. We'll begin with some basics, like how to identify network cable and connector types, identifying the different networking standards common in computer networks today, selecting and installing the appropriate network interface cards for a particular network, and managing static and dynamic IP addressing and network protocols.

Then we'll move into more advanced concepts, like identifying wired and wireless network components and setting up a wired or wireless network. You'll learn how to configure network security, manage network traffic, and configure remote access to a network. And throughout the course, you'll learn how to troubleshoot common network issues.

So, with that in mind, let's talk about the certification aspect of this course. It's very important you understand that certification is critical for a career in the IT industry.

The reason certification is so important is that it gives potential employers information they need when making hiring decisions. Basically, having certifications gives you a critical boost during the application and interview process.

This course actually meets the specifications of two different industry certification programs. First, TestOut's Network Pro certification.

Out's Network Pro exam fills in the gaps. It expects you to know about computer networking and show what you can do with computer networking.
